

Emerald Article Processing Charge (APC) Refund Policy

Following the acceptance of an article, the corresponding author will be sent an invoice for the Article Processing Charge (APC). Articles cannot be published until full payment has been received.

Emerald will consider refunds in the following circumstances:

- Incorrect licensing: Where an article is published in its final form on EmeraldInsight.com but does not display the correct CCBY license or copyright information due to our error, Emerald will offer a full refund of the APC.

No refund will be offered in the following circumstances:

- Article Retraction or Article Removal: In the rare case that Emerald deems it necessary that an article be retracted or removed (i.e. due to an infringement of publication ethics or breach in author warranties) Emerald is under no obligation to refund the APC.
- Article Withdrawal: If for any reason an author decides to withdraw their paper prior to publication, Emerald is under no obligation to refund the APC.
- APC Vouchers: Emerald has established partnerships with libraries and consortia to cover the cost of an agreed number of open access articles via an APC voucher scheme. Eligibility for an APC voucher must be highlighted prior to publication of an article. Emerald is unable to refund the APC to eligible authors following publication. For further information on APC vouchers please see our Open Access Partnerships page.
- Publication Delays: Emerald makes every effort to ensure that articles are published according to schedule. In the case where publication of an article is delayed due to Editorial or author changes Emerald will be under no obligation to refund the APC.
- Circumstances beyond our control: If publication is delayed or not fulfilled due to circumstances beyond our control i.e. natural or other disasters, Emerald will be under no obligation to refund the APC.
- Availability of articles on third party platforms. Where Emerald will use best endeavours to provide third parties with the metadata and APIs required to host open access articles on their platforms, Emerald is not responsible for maintaining the metadata or full text on these sites.
